ATTENTIONS

1. Do not put high-temperature objects directly on the sink or leave them on the sink for a long time.
2. After pouring tea or coffee and other substances, rinse them away with water in time to avoid staying in the sink for too long to avoid dirt formed by alkaline sediment residues.
3. The surface of the sink should be free from all kinds of harsh chemicals as much as possible. Such as acetone, strong acid cleaning agents, rubber and other chemical materials as banana oil, alcohol, paint removers, metal cleaners, etc., to avoid damaging the surface. In case of touch with the above items, wash the surface immediately with soapy water or laundry detergent.
4. Do not allow heavy or sharp objects to directly impact the surface of the sink.
5. Make sure the cabinet under the sink is well ventilated to avoid condensation on the back of the sink due to a humid climate.
6. Avoid using wire or steel wool as they can leave metal residue on the sink surface.
7. Do not leave low-carbon steel tableware or cast iron tableware in the sink for a long time. As keeping long time touch between iron and water can cause discoloration of the sink.
8. Do not leave rubber pads, wet sponges or cleaning pads in the sink overnight, as they can cause discoloration on the surface of the sink.
9. Do not use the sink as a cutting board.
10. If other electrical appliances such as a grinder is installed under the sink, please make sure that all brackets are secure and ensure that there is enough space between the machine and the sink for smooth air circulation to prevent the sink from deforming and detaching from the countertop due to vibration and overheating of the machine.

CLEANING AND MAINTENANCE

Granite sinks require regular maintenance.

1. The best way to care and maintenance for your granite sink is to clean it regularly and frequently. Cleaning your granite sink regularly is preferable to irregular thorough cleaning.
2. The best method of preventive care is to keep the sink clean and dry when not in use. After each use, rinse and dry the sink to reduce the hassle of major cleaning. Especially suitable for areas with high mineral content in water quality.
3. After washing with water, apply detergent (you can also use washing powder, soapy water or ammonia-containing detergent, such as dish washing liquid), wipe the surface of the sink with a cloth or sponge, preferably a scouring pad, and drain the water, rinse carefully and dry, forming a bright protective film on the surface of the sink to prevent spots from appearing.
4. Applying cleaning agent (laundry detergent or detergent) to the rough surface of a sponge can remove oil stains and other marks from the sink.
5. After a certain period of time, some minerals will accumulate in the sink, which can be removed with laundry detergent or vinegar and rinsed with water. When cleaning, the gentlest cleaning method is sufficient.
6. If the stain penetrates into the sink, mix 40 parts of water with 1 part of bleach water to make a solution, and pour the solution into the sink to soak overnight. Then rinse thoroughly with water. But this method cannot be used as a regular cleaning method.
7. The granite sink is made of extremely hard material. Some metal tableware will be washed into the bottom of the sink and leave behind metal residue. In fact, this will leave traces on the surface of the sink, which can be removed with a nylon brush and laundry detergent.
8. To deal with stubborn stains and spots of different colors on the granite sink, you can use stone cleaner (can be replaced by washing powder) and repeat Cleaning it several times. Or put one centimeter of water into the sink, pour an appropriate amount of detergent and place it for several hours before wiping and cleaning with cloth.
